

Overview & Purpose

Background information on why this research is needed

The purpose of this research is to validate and refine the design for the MVP trial session calendaring prototype.

Research Methods

How we will approach our research to gather the information we need

- Focus Group
 - Duration of 60 minutes
 - Scheduled remotely via zoom
- Collaborative Design Workshop

Engagement Groups

A list of people we will speak with to learn more about their experiences

In order to gather diverse perspectives from people that utilize DAWSON, we met with 2 Calendar Clerk Supervisors

Interview Guide (1st Round)

Questions we will reference to guide our conversations with users

Thank you for your time today. Today we'll be looking at some ideas we have that may make the calendaring process easier. We will go over the ideas and get your feedback on each one.

Please feel free to be as open and candid as you like and don't hold back your opinions.

REMINDER TO RECORD!

Would it be okay if I record this meeting for note-taking purposes?

Do you have any questions before we get started?

(Walk through the MVP)

1. What are your initial reactions to this workflow?
2. What are your thoughts on the hard coded rules?
3. Do you have any other thoughts or feedback on this flow right now?
4. Since you last saw this, we added the total number of sessions per week, indicators for borrowed court rooms and small trial sessions, and updated the colors to be bolder.

What are your thoughts about the updates? Are there concerns that the colors are slightly different from the existing set?

(Walk through the second flow)

5. What are your initial reactions to how the rules are displayed?
6. Are there any changes to the rules that you can think of?
7. To confirm, even if there is only one case for a location, you may schedule that location.
8. Specials - they're tracked and added manually: would these specials be in Dawson by the time calendaring starts since you already know when they are? Should specials be integrated as part of the term builder in Dawson? Follow up: would the first checkbox be helpful?
9. Would the second checkbox be helpful as part of the term builder?
10. What are your thoughts on the dropdown menu?

(Walk through the third flow)

11. What are your initial reactions to having a separate category for federal holidays?
12. Has there ever been a scenario where a session was scheduled on a federal holiday?
13. If a holiday falls on a Monday, do you schedule sessions for that week? What about other days of the week that a holiday may fall on?
14. Should the week of/before Christmas be blocked out by default? The week between Christmas and New Year's Day? Do you prefer to do this manually (not scheduling during these dates)?
15. Look at accordion options A and B: which do you prefer and why? What would make it even better?
16. Do you think that having these holidays be editable is useful, keeping in mind that the calendar will also be editable in excel?
17. When you build your spreadsheet, do you block out holidays or events like the superbowl on it? How do you indicate to yourself that a week or day is not one you can schedule on?
18. What about other city/week combinations where an event or holiday may cause a conflict in scheduling?

(Walk through the fourth flow - just the first one with all the accordions)

19. What are your initial reactions to the categories in the accordions? Do they cover all the different scenarios? Which would not be helpful when auto generating the term?
20. After our discussion about academic calendars in the Case Services meeting, we want to see if having the academic section for rules is even useful since its considered last? In this mock we'd have all the academic calender info put in here so Dawson would respect it when generating the calendar, but would it better to not consider those at all?

Outcomes

After conducting the focus group, the transcripts and recording were reviewed and the content synthesized for analysis. This led to refinement of the prototype reviewed, and a collaborative design workshop to begin working on features that addressed the user pain point regarding changes to cases eligible for trial.
